

Comment for Transhumanism

After reading this journal, it is clear that the author's main focus is on the exploration of transhumanism in Victoria Modesta's artwork. They provide a detailed analysis of the music video and discuss how it reflects the themes of using technology to enhance humanity and the ethical considerations that arise from such advancements.

The author's perspective is thought-provoking, particularly when they question whether Modesta's work is purely focused on promoting transhumanism or if it is more about empowering the disabled community to embrace their bodies. This raises interesting questions about the intersection between disability and transhumanism and how the two concepts can coexist.

Overall, the text presents a sophisticated perspective on transhumanism and how it is represented in popular culture. The author highlights the potential advantages and drawbacks of technological advancements in human evolution and prompts readers to ponder the ethical and societal consequences of such developments.

Xinyue Zhao's email: x.zhao0320221@arts.ac.uk

Xinyue Zhao's GitHub link: <https://git.arts.ac.uk/22012490/Critical-Studies.git>